The wonder of the gospel is that it is for all. Jesus may be called primarily to the Jewish people, the focus of his early ministry being the region around Galilee, which is where the deaf and mute man who is brought to him is healed, yet it seems that it is impossible for the good news he offers to be contained there. It is off the beaten track, in Tyre and Sidon, where he encounters the surprising and unexpectedly deep faith of the Gentile woman of Syrophenician origin. Her daughter is healed as Jesus responds with love, grace and mercy.
