TRINITY 18

16 OCTOBER 2022

This parable is given a heading so we know what it's about. Enjoy the humour of the story and the colourful nature of the characters, and, as with all parables, don't take it all too literally. Clearly we're being exhorted to persist in prayer like the widow who won't let go, but that doesn't mean God is like the curmudgeonly judge. The translation is polite: 'wear me out' could mean 'give me a black eye!' What a wonderful and shocking reversal of roles, as judges were the most powerful, widows the most vulnerable. Who is turning the world upside down?
